Raven Tales Stories

- Built on traditional stories that develop a sense of community, responsibility, respect, and interconnectedness of life
- High-impact graphic novel visuals, complete with frames, captions, and speech and thought bubbles
- Each title features an original interpretation of a popular tale from the teachings of the First Nations Peoples
- Stories include: trickster tales, pourquoi stories, origin stories, as well as traditional tales
- Humorous stories have high boy-appeal

Graphic novel format honours the oral storytelling tradition.

“About the Story” at the end of each book provides cultural context for the story.

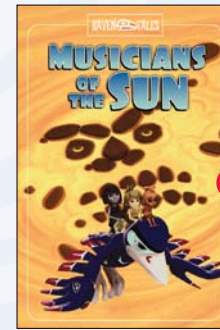

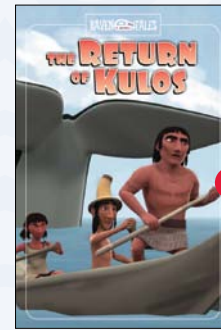

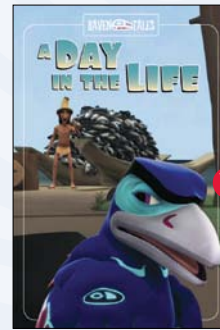

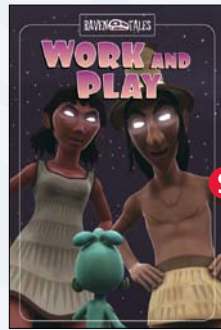

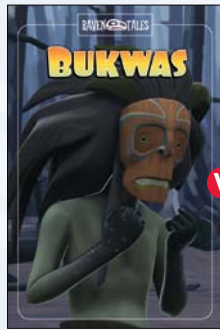

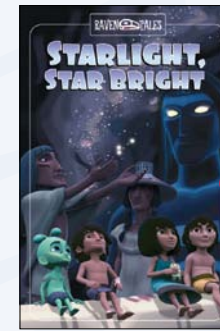

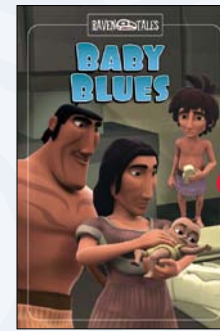

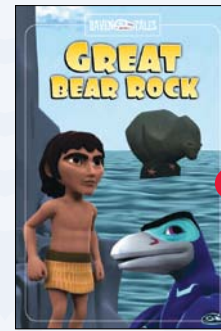

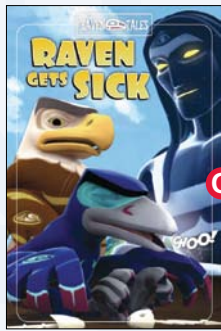

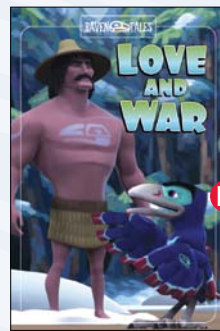

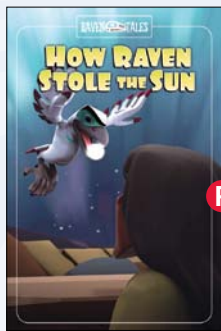

About the Raven Tales TV Show

Raven Tales is broadcast on Aboriginal Peoples Television Network (APTN) and has been reviewed and approved by National Geographic via the All Roads Film Project, the BC Ministry of Education as part of the Aboriginal Enhancement program, and the Smithsonian Institute via the National Museum of the American Indian (NMAI). The creators also worked closely with a number of tribal councils including the Coast Salish, Haida, Comanche, Apache, Zuni, Navajo, Kwakwaka'wakw, and Cherokee.
